Origin of Yagan Railway
The railway line links Tochigi and Fukushima Prefectures. The name Yagan was coined by combining one character from each of the names of ancient provinces in these prefectures: Ya（野）from Shimotsuke（下野）for Tochigi and Gan（岩）from Iwashiro（岩代）for Fukushima.

Providing a link between the Tokyo area and Aizu

Serving passengers with the great outdoors

Ryuokyo Canyon

About 22 million years ago, undersea volcanic activity formed volcanic rock. It was eroded by the flow of the Kinu River into today's Ryuokyo Canyon. It has such a powerful and magnificent view that it looks like a wriggling dragon. Rocks and mysterious stones in the canyon reflect the natural beauty. Also view fresh green leaves in the spring and summer and gorgeous red leaves in fall. It is an enjoyable sightseeing spot.

Kawaji-onsen

The hot spring village opened in the canyon where Kinu River and Ojika River intersect. It is located in a quiet mountainous area with the atmosphere of a hot spring town. Kawaji-onsen is said to have been discovered during the Kyoho years of the Edo period, when the Ojika River, an upstream part of the Kinu River, flooded. People traveling through Aizu Nishikaido loved the hot-spring post town. By foot, it takes 7 to 10 minutes from Kawaji-yumoto Station or 12 to 15 minutes from Kawaji-onsen Station to reach any of the hot-spring inns. Contact the inn for the availability of a pickup service.

Yunishigawa-onsen

In the ancient past, Heike warriors lost the Battle of Dannoura and escaped to this village. Their descendants are rumored to have discovered the hot spring. The losing warriors refrained from hoisting carp streamers or from keeping chickens in order to remain hidden. These practices remain today and the mountain hot-spring town conveys a tranquil atmosphere that could easily be associated with the hideout of fleeing Heike warriors.

Tadami-machi

Tadami-machi is located in western Fukushima Prefecture, along the border of Uonuma-shi, Niigata.
Rich in nature, the town was inscribed by UNESCO as a Biosphere Reserve in June 2014. For sightseeing in Tadami, the nature capital, selecting a group tour bus or a taxi package is recommended.

Only available by advance reservation, the group tour bus travels between Aizu-tajima Station and Tadami Station.
This is favorably accepted as it provides transportation for a route that is not covered by a route bus.

Time: approx. one hour
Relax on the bus. Timetable, fees and other detailed information are available on the Tadami Tourism Town Planning Society website.

○ Reservation accepted from 8:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

It is ok not to come by car. Use the taxi package.

- Tagokura Dam course
- Historic sites course
- Single-day hot spring course
- Beech forest walking course
- Natural disaster educational course

Time: 2 hours to 5 hours
The courses may change without notice. For detailed information, visit the Tadami Tourism Town Planning Society website.

Yugawa-mura

Yugawa-mura is called the "navel" of Aizu. To the east is a beautiful mountain named Mt. Bandai. Aizu-bange-machi, hometown of legendary singer Hachiro Kasuga, is located to the west. Yugawa-mura is also neighbors with Aizu-Wakamatsu-shi, well-known as the hometown of Byakkotai, to the south. Kitakata-shi, north of Yugawa-mura, is well-known as a ramen town. Yugawa-mura is the smallest village in Fukushima Prefecture with an area of 16.36 square-kilometers. If you visit, be careful as you may pass by without noticing it. This can easily happen in an instant.

The village commands a view of Mt. Bandai.

Tasty rice can be harvested from the village.

Yanaizu-machi

Fukuman-kokuzobosatsu Nanokado-hadakamairi Enzoji Temple

Yanaizu-machi is a temple town that prospered mainly with Fukuman-kokuzobosatsu Enzoji, a temple with about 1,200 years of history. Nanokado-hadakamairi (visiting the temple half-naked), children's parade, okomori (staying at the temple to worship) and other traditional events have been held in this town from the ancient past.

The town is full of attractions such as tasty cuisine, most notably awamanju, and the hot spring.

Legend of akabeko

Legend has it that a herd of red cattle appeared from nowhere and really helped to build Kokuzodo in 1617. Local people began to call the red cattle "akabeko" and have loved it ever since. Akabeko has other nicknames, such as the cattle that bring happiness and children's protective god.

Nishiaizu-machi

Located in northwestern Fukushima Prefecture on the border of Niigata, Nishiaizu-machi is a town full of human warmth and is blessed with beautiful nature that colors each of the four seasons. From the Edo period to the days of the Meiji Restoration, Nishiaizu-machi developed along with transportation via the Agano River, and also functioned as a post town along Echigokaido. Thus the town prospered as a key place where people and goods gathered.

Mt. Iide boasts abundant nature. In addition, Nishiaizu-machi has picturesque places such as Choshi-no-kuchi and prehistoric heritage such as Oyamazumi Shrine, Nyohoji Temple Torioi Kannon and Jomon remains. The town, a sacred place in Aizu, has a long history as the home of faith.

Moreover, the town is blessed with resources such as tasty farm products and a hot spring.

INFORMATION

Kitakata ramen is regarded as one of Japan's three major types of ramen noodles.

In this town, about 120 ramen restaurants compete over the flavor of their noodles. Kitakata ramen is characterized by thick and curly noodles which are referred to as hirauchi-jukusei-kasuimen (flat-wheat, mature and hydrated noodles).

Locally brewed sake of Kitakata

Kitakata is the place for rice. It has bright spring water and produces good rice for brewing sake. Combined with the severe cold, these characteristics help to make high-quality sake.

Nagatoko of Shingu-Kumano Shrine (nationally important cultural property)

The shrine was constructed in 1089. The nagatoko (long floor) of its worship hall was constructed in the early Kamakura period. Forty-four thick columns, each with a diameter of 45 centimeters, stand in five rows. The thatched building with a hip roof has an atrium throughout. The treasure hall was completed and opened to public in 2001.

Kitashiobara-mura

Bishamon Swamp

Kitashiobara-mura is located in northwestern Fukushima Prefecture. Most of the village is part of Bandai-Asahi National Park. In the Urabandai Highlands, the center of the national park, more than 300 lakes and swamps of all sizes, such as Lake Hibara and Goshiki-numa Swamp, make up the magnificent landscape against the backdrop of Mt. Bandai and the Azuma Mountain Range. The appearance changes with each season, with unique charms.

Bandai-machi

Kondo (main hall) and chumon (central gate) of Enichiji Temple

Spanning the foot of Mt. Bandai, a beautiful mountain in Aizu, Bandai-machi is the gateway to tourism in Aizu and is also a town of history and culture. Furthermore, it is rich in nature: The clean water from the natural springs at the western foot of Mt. Bandai has been selected as one of the top 100 natural water sources in Japan.

Enichiji Temple was constructed at the behest of the priest Tokuitsu in the early Heian period. It is the birthplace of Buddhist culture in Aizu, with more than 1,200 years of history, and continues to pass on its heritage, for example, through the restoration of its kondo.

Inawashiro Tourist Association
TEL.0242-62-2048

Inawashiro-machi, birthplace of Dr. Hideyo Noguchi, intrigues visitors with its scenic beauty. The town offers a lot of fun in any season.

Inawashiro-machi also has numerous hot spring sources where you can enjoy the abundantly gushing water for bathing.

Mineno-oishi (designated national natural monument)

When Mt. Bandai erupted in 1888, volcanic mud flowed from the crater of the explosion and carried a huge mass of pyroxene andesite. The stone is 8.2 meters long and over 3 meters high. It is huge and is thought to have moved a distance of 5 kilometers in a straight line from the top of the mountain. Academically, this provides valuable evidence that a volcanic mud flow carried such a huge stone an unexpectedly long distance.
